

QWIXX family gets a new member with X-CHANGE

The dice game Qwixx is practically the face of Nürnberger-Spielkarten-Verlag (NSV). For over 10 years, it's been winning over players worldwide. Part of its success comes from the fact that creator Steffen Benndorf never runs out of new ideas for his long-running hit. Now, with QWIXX X-CHANGE, there's a new version in the form of a game pad that appeals to both fans and newcomers. It was developed in the trusted partnership with Reinhard Staupe.

Compared to the original game, there's one key change that stands out: the X-Change row. This feature gives you a way to nudge your luck during the game.

What doesn't fit is made to fit

Each space on the X-Change row shows two numbers that can be swapped. This applies especially to the first action of a turn when everyone can use the result of the white dice. If the sum matches one of the numbers in an X-Change space, you can write down the other number instead, giving yourself a potential advantage. The catch: each box can only be used once, and just like with the colored rows, you're only allowed to use the spaces from left to right. So, every change needs to be carefully considered.

Besides these fun new twists for Qwixx, QWIXX X-CHANGE also stands out for its eco-friendly production. The game pads are printed on both sides to make the most of the recycled paper, and the plastic wrapping is made entirely from recycled material. In short: 100% SUSTAINABLE.

QWIXX X-CHANGE is suitable for two to five players aged eight and above, with a playing time of approximately 15 minutes. The product will be available from October 2024 with an MSRP of 6.50 Euros – in stores and via the NSV online shop. To play with the game pads, one of the basic versions of Qwixx (Original, XL or Deluxe) is required.
